FOREWORD

This academic year, which has rapidly disappeared with the passing of time, has been a glorious one. Old records have been broken. New ones have been established. From within these days of great progressive development have come scores of memories—some pleasant, some sad. We, the Senior Class of nineteen hundred forty-nine, take great pride in editing for you these pages to aid in recalling the many memories of school days. Between the covers of THE RAILROADER of 1949, we have attempted to produce, in our own limited fashion, a record of your activities and achievements.

Throughout future years, these memories will remain priceless. It is our sincere hope that they will always fulfill their intended purpose—of bringing to mind a warm and glowing remembrance of our Alma Mater.

PUBLISHED BY THE
SENIOR CLASS OF
SPENCER HIGH SCHOOL
SPENCER, NORTH CAROLINA

DEDICATION

For many years Miss Clara Davis has been a member of the faculty of Spencer High School. Throughout these years she has proved a loyal and efficient guide, teacher, and friend.

With humble gratefulness and sincere appreciation we, the Senior Class of 1949, dedicate this annual to Miss Clara Davis, whose life of devoted service is a continuing example of the highest virtues.

Got a Load?

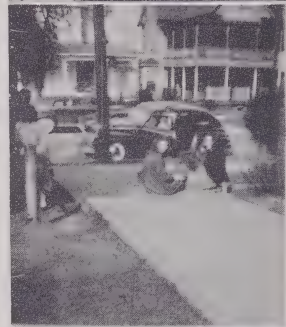

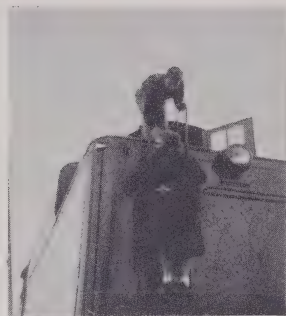

Going Somewhere?

What'sa matter,
Carolyn?

Ye olden Hangout

So high!

Taking it easy—

Gotcha arms full?

Off to the Races—

Beware!!!

How about a coke?
Jolly Juniors—
Can't you read?
Stack-em up!
Taking it over—
Lost?

At the Roundhouse—
Are we intruding?
Just before the bell!
Atlas!
Boys only!
This is the end!

Class Poem

*The fleeting years have passed away—
The time has come for goodbyes;
We must venture on, knowing that
"Within ourselves our future lies."
'Tis the beginning of a new life;
We have heard duty's call—
As we climb the stairs of success
We must maintain our balance—not fall.*

*Though endless dreams may send us spinning
And others may prevent our winning,
We must not falter nor hesitate
But carefully plan our schemes with Fate.
While we watch the hands of Old Man Time
Slipping around his face,
Our weary feet quicken their steps
And try to match his pace.*

*Somewhere in the distance waiting
There are goals for us to attain—
And as the hours shrink swiftly away
We shall strive to make our gain.
Now as we take our last look backward,
We sense a feeling of deep regret—
We sincerely wish those we leave to know
That memories they gave us, we shall not forget.*

*As we travel, we bear in our mind
A definite project or plan to find.
We'll live in this world with happiness or strife,
For our knowledge increases as we journey through life.
One day we shall linger; breathe a sigh
And with joyful heart but misty eyes
We'll recall those wonderful years at Spencer High!*

Last Will and Testament

In the year one thousand nine hundred forty-nine, before me personally came the Seniors of Spencer High School, who are regarded generally as individuals of sound mind and disposing memory, to make, ordain, publish, and declare this to be their Last Will and Testament, and to acknowledge that they executed the same as their free act and deed.

In commemoration, we leave to our alma mater a permanent niche in our hearts; we are thankful that it taught us that the beginning of happiness is in wisdom.

To the Junior Class, we leave our seats in assembly; our distinction of being "dignified Seniors"; and also, we leave a large set of shoes to fill.

To the Sophomore Class, we leave our enthusiasm and foresight. With these virtues, they can obtain many honors.

To the Freshman Class, now that its members are wearing long pants, we leave them our collection of stale jokes.

To the Faculty, we leave true appreciation for their being so patient and understanding about our shortcomings.

To Mrs. Evelyn Tichenor and Mr. Fant Kelly, we leave the Senior Class "Medal of Honor" for exhibiting bravery beyond the call of duty, while under one year of continuous bombing and shelling by the Senior Class led by General Irene Parker.

Individually and collectively, we bequeath the following:

I, Price Austin, will my French book to anybody who can pass verb tests. I couldn't.

I, Grady Arrants, leave my English grades to anyone who does not want to graduate.

I, David Barker, leave my football helmet to anyone whose head is large enough to fill it.

To my sister, Martha Lou, I, Margaret Beaver, leave the ability to get to school at 8:44.

We, Jessie Sue Burton and Virginia Wilson, leave our efficiency in the chemistry lab to anyone who can tell nitric acid from hydrochloric acid.

I, Bill Brinkley, leave my ability to get lower lockers to any individual who can withstand being hit on the head for four years and still remain unaffected.

(To Whom) it may concern: I, Kirby Broughton, leave my French ability to anyone who possesses no ability of any kind.

I, Charles Bruce, leave my thanks to my battle-weary Senior Advisors. After all, they deserve something!

I, Barbara Campbell, leave my nickname, "Mule" . . . I hope!

I, Floyd Coates, leave my ability to sing "hillbilly" songs to anyone whose voice will stand the strain.

To Bill Spake, I, Jimmy Corriher, leave my talent in chemistry, provided he can find it! (Note: 'Tis evident that it is well hidden . . . judging from my grades.)

I, Betty Coughenour, leave my position as an assistant to the first grade teacher to anyone who loves little children as much as I once did.

To Herman Eagle, I, Bobby Eagle, leave Bus 14, provided he can maneuver it through mud . . . and reach school on time.

I, Betty Eller, leave my superlative, "Biggest Flirt," to anyone who can assume the responsibility that it carries.

To Nancy Elliotte, I, Larry Elliotte, leave my "push over the fence," provided I fall in the right direction.

I, Bobby Earnhardt, leave my position at left end on the football team to Cary Lee Broadway. (His ribs must be strong enough to play against Lexington, though!)

I, Ramona Farrington, leave my ability to obtain a private study hall to my little sister.

To my brother, I, Jimmy Grubb, leave my ability to irk Mrs. Tichenor.

I, Betty Heilig, leave my dreams of snow in June to anyone who has equally crazy dreams.

To Arnold Young, I, Maurice Henderson, leave my seat in the cafeteria, provided he can fill it.

I, Minnie Honbaier, leave my superlative, "Quietest," to any person who can qualify as a senior, and still be quiet.

I, Ray Honbaier, leave the front seat on Bus 11 to whoever gets there first.
I, Margaret Koone, leave my cosy corner in a private study hall to any person who will appreciate it.

I, Edwin Koontz, leave the school store in the hands of the Student Council, providing it can find a person willing to operate it for two years straight.

To Jimmy Adams, I, Albert Loflin, leave my ability to acquire trade credits.

I, Louise Miller, leave to my sister, Peggy, my ability to keep quiet in study hall.

I, Jerry Moore, leave my geometry ability to someone who needs it.

I, Anne Morrison, in order to be fair to everyone, just leave!

I, Irene Parker, leave my position as President of the Senior Class to someone less bashful than I.

To Norma Albright, I, Margaret Pickler, leave my place at the chemistry table, provided she will keep it clean from lack of use.

I, Eugene Pierce, leave to my brother, Bobby, my ability to make good grades. He needs this ability, it seems!

I, Douglas Powell, bequeath to each member of the student body my heartfelt gratitude for making my life, during these past two years, a thing of joy and beauty. Though time may dim my sight and erase sounds from my mind, it will never dim the lustre of your kindness. To the faculty, I can only say, "You are my friends." To Mrs. Evelyn Tichenor, I render thanks for allowing me to regard her as one of my inspirations. Finally, but most important, I leave.

To my brother, Kenneth, I, Ronald Queen, will my membership in the Senior Class, provided he will make better grades than I.

I, Berneice Ridenhour, leave my entire school career with a perfect attendance to anyone who likes to go to school that well.

I, Inez Ridenhour, leave my love and admiration for all my teachers to my sister Joan. To anyone willing to accept the apprenticeship, I leave the superlative of "Most Conceited."

I, Pat Shelby, leave my ability to chew gum in class to anyone who can get by with it. Much to my sorrow, I was always caught . . . chewing away!

I, Carl Shuping, leave my many years in high school to anyone who has the inclination "to linger just a little longer than the usual four years."

I, Carl Sigmon, leave my seat in study hall to anyone who can tell good jokes.

I, Betty Starnes, leave my ability to obtain a private telephone to anyone who has a friend in East Spencer.

We, Jack Swicegood and Walter Baker, leave Peg Smith and Carolyn Thornton, respectively, and we hereby warn all boys that though we are gone, we shall not be forgotten." (We hope!)

I, Bob Sells, leave to whom I must, what I must.

I, Harry Thomason, leave my school bus, Good Old 63, to anyone who can drive it to school on time.

I, Jimmy Walton, leave everything! However, I will be back next fall to claim it.

I, Carl Wilson, leave my seat in Senior English to Lyle Scruggs, provided he doesn't take six years to get it.

I, Sylvia Wiseman, bequeath my natural tresses to Dot Fries, so that she may spend more time in studying.

I, Gabie Wyatt, leave my shorthand ability to anybody who can take being in the same class with a group of giggling girls.

We, the members of the Senior Class, will and bequeath to our school our love, respect, and loyalty.

By witness thereof, in the presence of this assembly, I, the testator, have executed and published this Last Will and Testament, in the name of this the Senior Class of 1949 of Spencer High School.

DOUGLAS POWELL
Class Testator

P. S.:

I, Claude Sebastian, leave my ability in French to "Chubby" Young! He may need it.

I, Bob Rimer, leave Una Mae Lemmon.

I, Myron Thompson, will most likely be back, so hold everything.

I, Wesley Withers, leave my football T-shirt to Lynn Barrier in hopes that he'll treat it better than I did.

"Best-All-Round"

Class Prophecy

For the first time in ten years, I stepped off the train platform into my hometown. "Cab, sir?" asked a voice. Upon turning around, I saw Grady Arrants standing beside a sleek automobile. Clambering into his taxi, I immediately began rattling off questions. I learned from Grady that Edwin Koontz owned a super-market and was doing very well for himself. Upon arriving at my destination, I thanked Grady and cautiously threaded my way among the bustling mob down the sidewalk. Worn out from my battle with the crazed throng, I darted into a store, where I saw Bob Earnhardt gloomily sitting on a stool. After we exchanged greetings, I inquired of David Barker, his co-manager, why Bob was so down-hearted. "Aw, a fellow can't win," he complained. "Every time we get in new articles, Jack Swicegood runs a sale at his ten-cents store until he has time to stock up." I extended my sympathy to him, and then I commenced my second "third degree" of the day. David informed me that Pat Shelby, Eugene Pierce, Anne Morrison, and Bob Rimer were playing in Walter Baker's orchestra at Cornequ Hall.

"Wow," I whistled, "they're doing all right." But what has happened to Carl Shuping?" I asked. David, in turn, told me about Carl's owning a large livestock and poultry farm at Ellis Cross Roads. He also added that Ray Honbaier and Floyd Coates had a large interest in it.

Upon promising David to see him before I left, I again placed myself at the mercy of the crowd and was swept into an elevated train bearing the name of "Doug-Powell Company." A harsh voice rang out, "Cash fare, buddy!" This voice belonged to Bob Eagle, who was the conductor of the car. I dropped my fare into the box and was about to remind Bob who I was, when "Whoosh!!" I was carried out the door amidst the angry tide of elbows and feet. Coming into contact with a sturdy telephone post, I stopped. The horde of speed-maniacs sped past me on both sides. Badly bruised though I was from my sudden stop, I knew that I would have to thank the telephone company for putting the post in such a convenient place. Looking for some means with which I could identify the owner of the pole, I found engraved in the wood "Harmon & Propst, Makers of Fine Telephone Poles"! I decided not to call to express my appreciation, as I knew it would only confuse me more. So I headed, slowly but surely, toward a flashing 50-foot neon sign. I barely escaped a collision with Betty Heilig, as I didn't give a hand-signal when turning left to the entrance door. I swirled around in the doorway to say hello, but she too was a speed-maniac and was well out of sight before I could speak. Stepping inside, I felt a great wave of elation surge over me. Why, I could walk freely in the spacious lobby! Wiggling my elbows and feet like someone with delirium-tremens, I advanced to the desk. "Are you crazy or something?" inquired a friendly voice.

"Claude Sebastian!" I yelped. "Gee, it's good to see you. What's happened to this place since I've been gone?"

"Oh, it's expanded quite a bit," explained Claude in a matter of fact tone. "When the Senior Class of '49 started out in life, things began jumping."

"Jumping isn't the word for it," I exclaimed. "It seems that "leaping" would be more appropriate."

"It did happen pretty fast, at that," agreed Claude, "but when I stumbled on the formula for operating automobiles with water, I became the world's richest man. After obtaining my vast fortune, I staked Berneice Ridenhour in the beauty salon business, Price Austin in the automobile business, and gave Betty Eller a helping hand with her country club. These three individuals, in turn, went into partnership with Barbara Campbell, Gabie Wyatt, and Sylvia Wiseman, respectively; and you know as well as I, that, when those six get together, anything can happen. And, brother, it did! They are now very wealthy, but they don't hoard their money. Once a week, our town treasurer, Albert Loflin, comes around for a donation to help the needy folks of our community, and each one of them contributes generously."

"That's fine," I said, "but, Claude, I'm tired and could use a little sleep. Whom do I seek to get a room?"

"I own this shack," he said, "so I guess you can have room 314 on the 83rd floor. Don't worry about your rent, for it isn't due for ninety-nine years."

Thanking Claude for his kindness, I buzzed for the elevator. The door swung open, and I stepped in to find Maurice Henderson at the controls.

"Why, Maurice," I exclaimed, "I thought you would do better than this."

"This is my way of amusing myself," he explained. "I get tired of hanging around that ole' Henderson & Corriher Airlines all the time. My managers, Jerry Moore and Jimmy Grubb, are forever and eternally asking for their wages in advance. I keep reminding them to forbid their wives, Inez Ridenhour and Betty Jean Starnes, from buying new models of every automobile manufactured, but it doesn't seem to do any good."

I assured Maurice, as he brought the elevator to a jerky halt, that things would turn out for the best. My intestinal fortitude was almost thrown by such wild maneuvering out the window. I unsteadily ventured forth from the elevator, and though my vision was dimmed by the long, dizzy ride, I could make out a red uniform in front of me.

"Here, boy, take this luggage to room 314," I said.

"Righto," answered a brisk voice, and I was literally jerked down when my bags were snatched from me as if they were gold pieces. The walk to my room cleared my vision and I saw that Jimmy Walton was the porter.

Wearily, I listened while Jimmy rattled off news like a veteran tobacco auctioneer. He told me about Carl Sigmon's owning a nation-wide bus line, how Irene Parker's set of quintuplets were faring, and that Bob Sells, along with Carl Wilson, had broken the world's auto speed record with their "Jet-mobile," designed by Ronald Queen. I thanked Jim for his information and tumbled into bed. I dreamed all night of elbows, telephone poles, sore shins, and children whizzing up and down the sidewalks on atomic-powered tricycles.

I awakened the next morning feeling some better. There was a knock at my door, and Minnie Honbaier wheeled in a tray loaded with food.

"Compliments of our chef, Kirby Broughton, sir," she said, and then whipped around and scampered out the door.

I turned on my radio-television set, and on the screen a familiar face appeared. It was that of Jessie Sue Burton. Judging from her news reports, she was a very good reporter. The steak, which was part of my breakfast, gave me a terrific struggle as I listened to Jessie's reliable statements of fact:

"Betty Jean Coughenour and Ramona Farrington, our State representatives, are leaving tomorrow for Russia, where they will confer with our American Counsel-in-Chief, Myron Thompson, on confidential matters . . .

"Virginia Wilson's speech yesterday concerning our racial problems created quite an impression on our State senators, Louise Miller and Wesley Withers." . . . At this point the radio squealed, and then cut off. I looked in the directory for a radio-repairman, and saw the name, Harry Thomason. I was on the verge of calling him when I saw his company's motto, "Always be on time," and I was reminded of the train I had to catch.

I called the desk and asked for some help in packing my bags. Margaret Pickler and Billy Brinkley were there in a few minutes, and they helped me for "old-time's sake." I raced into the hall, hopped in the elevator, and shot down to the ground floor. I turned in my key to Larry Elliotte, who was the desk manager during the day, and hit the trail for the door. I wasn't hampered by luggage, since I left instructions at the hotel to send it to the station for me. With some practice in the art of cracking people's ribs (I had spent a day in Spencer!), I made my way through the maze of bundles and battered human bodies quite well, until Margaret Beaver plunked a very solid knee in the solar-plexus and whizzed by like a shooting star. Upon seeing a cab, I managed to attract the driver's attention by waving my bloody handkerchief high above my head. Swaying unsteadily from loss of blood, I limped into the cab and found to my horror that the driver was a woman!

By straining my befuddled memory to the utmost, I recognized her as being Margaret Koone, who had forgotten me by now. After arriving at the station at Margaret's expense of two fenders and a windshield, which was punctured by my head, I paid her and clambered aboard my train. It was then and there that I decided that if any of my classmates wanted to see me, they could come to the quiet little town of New York, population just seven million.

Yours truly,

CHARLES BRUCE,

Class Prophet of Class of 1949

History

The long anticipated time is here! We, the Seniors of 1949, have been looking forward to this time for the past twelve years; yet, we seem rather desolate, for this culmination of the years of waiting marks the end of youth and the beginning of a new phase of life. We are uncertain of the future, but the past school days are foremost not only in our hearts, but also in our minds.

Some of us are still thinking of our first day at school. The efforts of Mrs. Eva Harris and Miss Merle McAdams to keep us quiet, and the shyness of each one of us, will never be forgotten.

By the next year, we had overcome our shyness. Now that we had learned to read and write, we thought that we knew everything. We were prone to be a little disobedient to our teachers, Miss Elizabeth Lawson and Miss Lucy Kerns.

Miss Janice Hutchins was our only teacher in the third grade, because the former two third grades had been combined into one. This fact made us happy, but our happiness was short-lived, for we found that we were going to have to study!

For the next four years, we studied hard and learned about geography, history, art, music, arithmetic, and spelling. We learned a little about that extremely complicated subject, English, but it was not studied as it should have been.

The eighth grade was perhaps the first important stepping-stone in our lives. Mrs. Jane Smith and Mrs. Alice McFadden departmentalized the eighth grade work. We liked this idea tremendously, as it made our work more interesting. We soon learned that we must toil bravely to meet the coming years. Therefore we settled down, put away our childish ways, and began to study hard so that we could leave grammar school behind and go on to high school. At the end of the year, we found ourselves ready for high school. There was a great deal of excitement and a feeling of maturity at last.

The next September, the road to Knowledge led us to the second great stepping-stone, our first year in high school. We were awed by the fact that we had five teachers instead of one. We had lost Mr. Gary T. Windell, but we were fortunate in securing Mr. M. L. Rowland as our new principal. The Beta Club was organized that year, and we were proud of the fact that some of us were admitted as members. The Beta Club Convention was the highlight of the year for some of us, while the football season was the highlight for the boys. After nine months of hard study, trials, and experiences, we were dismissed for the summer vacation.

The following three months were enjoyed by all. However we were glad to see our old friends again upon the opening of school in August. We felt very adult and sophisticated for the Freshmen looked up to us.

The following August brought our class to the third stepping-stone, our Junior year. Since we were well on the way to Seniorhood, we all set to work diligently. We had a new principal, Mr. Fred Holt, an old friend of everyone. Under the directions of Miss Pauline Eller and Mrs. Julia Slate, our sponsors, we sold magazines in order to raise money for the Junior-Senior Banquet, a gala fiesta, which was enjoyed by all. We selected the following as our leaders: David Barker, president; Grady Arrants, vice-president; Jewel Hale, secretary; and Anne Morrison, treasurer. When summer came, everyone looked forward to the next year, when we would reach our goal.

The last step in high school was taken when the class returned to school September 15, 1948. The opening of school had been delayed because of the polio ban. The class had dwindled to fifty-five students. However, the majority of our original group had achieved the objective of becoming dignified Seniors! The officers for the fourth year were as follows: Irene Parker, president; Jack Swicegood, vice-president; Sylvia Wiseman, secretary; and Barbara Campbell, treasurer. The work of the Juniors in giving us such a lovely Junior-Senior Banquet was sincerely appreciated, and our enjoyment could not be told in words.

We have come to the end of our school sojourn, and the Future now lies before us! However, the Class of 1949 will always remember the happy days spent within the walls of their Alma Mater. We shall endeavor to uphold the ideals instilled within our hearts and minds by our school—dear ole' Spencer High.

Class Statistics of '49

Perhaps you will be interested in the vital statistics of the Senior Class of 1949. All facts are authentic, based on true observations made by "yours truly," Maurice Henderson.

The average color of the eyes of the weaker sex is brown, but a few of the girls have green eyes (cats, no doubt). Their waists are in tune with their heights (5 ft. 3½ inches), measuring only 23 inches. (Smaller every year.) The average weight of the young ladies is about 115 pounds, although Betty Coughenour forges ahead by tipping the scales at 130 pounds. The sizes of the girls' shoes average 6½, but Margaret Beaver and Louise Miller lift a size 8 all day. Sylvia Wiseman and Inez Ridenhour wear only a 5½ . . . shoe, I mean.

The hair of these lovely damsels is brown. Some wear a long and silky hair-do, while others prefer the new style haircut (very short).

About 4/5 of the girls are the "onlooker" type. (They look on while the other 1/5 participate in the sports.) Their minds are in the higher car brackets this year, because they prefer Buicks to any other particular car.

Our boys of 1949 are quite tall, the average height being 6 ft. Kirby Broughton, measuring 6 ft. 3 in., and Charles Bruce, measuring 5 ft. 5 in., are the unusual exceptions. The males on the average weigh about 150 pounds, but Edwin Koontz tips the scales at 222. (The reason—he operates a grocery store.) The supports (shoes) for these strong men average only 9½. But wait! . . . Gene Pierce lays claim to size 12½, while Charles Bruce finds size 6 uncomfortably large! The boys possess very dainty waists, measuring only 32 inches. (Oh yeah?)

Like the pretty "mademoiselles," the young "garçons" prefer Buicks to any other car, so Harry Thomason is the envy of the entire class . . . with his merry Oldsmobuick!

Both boys and girls, on the whole, boast very fair complexions (except David Barker and Bob Rimer). Could this be the reason that most of the "forty-niners" prefer red and blue to all other colors?

Thus you have the statistics of '49, signed, sealed, and delivered by

Class Song

TUNE: A PERFECT DAY

*As we come to the end of our senior year,
We bid to all sad Adieu—
To all memories we hold so dear,
To our classmates and friends so true.
We find that our problems have just begun,
We wonder what the future holds.
The edge of life itself we're upon,
And we face it calm and bold.*

*Alma Mater we have learned well from you—
You must know we love you too.
All the memories the years will renew—
Of the years that we spent with you.
And now it is time for leave-taking,
We'll all begin life anew.
So as our lives begin to unfold,
We bid to all Adieu.*

The Spencer High School Football Team of 1948 met the toughest foes that the South Piedmont Conference had to offer. After the smoke of battle had cleared from each contest, the "Railroaders" were still intact and ready to continue the conflict; but the rules of the game say, "Stop at the end of the fourth quarter." Our opponents were always willing to abide by the rules in this respect. Thus the local warriors accepted the final verdict and began to repair armor for the next engagement. The Railroaders' final game of the season, with their ancient rival, Boyden High, will long be remembered. The score was in favor of Boyden, but the play and fighting heart of the Spencer team will always overshadow this. The Railroaders are respected by all their opponents. Future Spencer High teams must carry on in this manner.

Good Luck Always
to a really swell
guy! Love from Dad & Mother

Lynn

I'll never forget walking down the street with you, and the love we've had.
You're so nice ~~and~~
can't put it in to words.
Just be as good as
you are now and you never have any serious worries. Love ya
Johnnie.

Memories

Lynne:

I don't believe I know anything good about so I wish you all the best luck you could possibly have. No kidding. You're hot! No. I guess you are a pretty good ole guy. But I still don't see how you have so many friends. Remember the few we've had in school together.

Thanks for all the help you gave me in History and I'll be looking for you there next year. Take it easy in that Whippet and don't get caught for speaking shakin' women from this town cause Buld will get on you. Don't guess you'll have time to spend the weekend with me and go fishing since Buld's here and your time will probably be filled up. Take it easy buddy. Would write more but I just lost my pen.

Be careful in Study Hall and don't have any more blow-outs
Ricky Broughton

Lynn, you told me once of something you remembered when you were in English class with me - well, remember this - you have a lot of wonderful possibilities and you have my best wishes and any help I can give you in your effort to realize them.
Always, Julia Chubb

Lynn, I am proud
to have you as one
of my classmates.
Always be as swell
as you are now.

The Staff and the Senior Class sincerely appreciate the cooperation of the following merchants.

Lynn
I have enjoyed this year of school with you and I know
I will enjoy the rest of them and we can have a good time
this summer if we work it right.

You are the best but I have Basket came home today didn't she Thursday, May 19, 1949 and we will start having fun with that old Sard Basket. Next year I hope you don't have any more blow-outs. Let's have fun all summer. Your buddy
